

designing for the stars...

I was busy in the boutique on a particular Friday, sorting out the cloth orders, adding the takings and paying them out again in wage packets as I normally do at the end of the week. I heard someone coming up the stairs. Damn I really didn't need another customer at this moment. I looked up and saw Warren Beatty standing in front of me, I must admit my mouth did fall open and I did get a bit flustered but then I saw Julie Christie behind him. She looked even better in the flesh than she did on screen. She had been nominated for her part in the film 'DARLING' and she wanted me to design her dress in case she won - which she did and in my gold lamé dress. We had such fun together and I will tell you about it.

Sandy Shaw...

'puppet on a string'

one of the many clubs...

"how dare you come into my boutique shouting 'shop!'"

